The New Ohio School Book Law.

(Delaware Gazette.)

What is known as the Pennell school book bill is now a law of the state. Its principal features are as follows:

The state commission shall within thirty days procure copies of the latest and best editions of the text-books now in use in the public schools of the state, that within sixty days the governor and secretary of state shall investigate and inquire into the cost of the books and the price at which they can be furnished to the public schools, and shall fix the maximum at which the publishers shall sell them to the board of education, which, however, shall not exceed 75 per cent. of the wholesale list price; that the commissioner of common schools shall thereupon advise publishers of the maximum prices fixed and invite proposals from them to furnish the books and to name the prices at which they will furnish them; none, however, to be considered unless the price proposed does not exceed 75 per cent. of the wholesale list price.

Thereupon the governor and secretary of state shall examine the proposals, and, if within their opinion the books come within the 75 per cent. limit, and the public schools of the state will be well supplied with good and sufficient school books, they shall make an order that the proper editions be accepted, and the publishers shall be bound by said proposition for a period of five years.

The commissioner of common schools shall then furnish each board of education in the state a list of all the books coming within the proposition submitted and accepted with the prices fixed by the state board. The boards of education of the state shall meet on the last Saturday in August and shall then, or at an adjourned meeting within two weeks thereafter, from the list furnished by the state board, determine the books to be used in the schools for five years, and shall upon the receipt of the books, if so ordered, remit the amount direct to the publisher.

The bill further provides that in case publishers fail or refuse to put in proposals coming within the 75 per cent. limit sufficient to properly supply the public schools, then the state board shall advertise and receive proposals for a state series of text-books, and upon the procuring of texts sufficient therefore for submitting them to a board of experts for examination, and after being approved by the state board, the board shall advertise for bids for printing and making of the state series of school books.

The state series of text-books shall be furnished to the different counties, to be by the counties distributed to the different boards of education at actual cost.

TALK ABOUT HORSES.

Some Facts Regarding Sulfonal and Its Use.—D. McWilliams' Perfect Filly.

A recent number of Clark's Horse Review gives an editorial reference to the remarkable stallion, Sulfonal, without knowing or referring to its present owner, Mr. P. O. Sharpless. This fact adds to its interest because it is neither an advertisement or a paid write-up. The article follows:

"Among the stallions that will be trained in Ohio next summer is one called Sulfonal, that is by Nutwood and out of the Clay Pilot mare Fulton Maid, that was formerly owned by James Van Etta, of Jonesville, Wis. Mr. Van Etta, who died not long ago, was as thorough going a sport as ever drew breath, and long after he had passed the meridian of life he was able and willing to get into a sulky and drive a heat with the best of the boys. Fulton Maid was one of the last trotters he owned, and she made her record of 2:24, as the result of a wager between her owner and the late Harry Keane of this city a few years ago. Mr. Van Etta used to spend a good deal of his time in Chicago, and was a great friend of Keane's. One day the subject of Fulton Maid's speed came up, and Mr. Van Etta asserted that she could beat 2:30. Keane was willing to bet that she could not, and the result was that the mare was matched against time, something like $700 being wagered on the event, which took place at the old west side track in this city a number of years ago. One of the conditions of the bet was that Mr. Van Etta, who was then about seventy years old, was to drive the mare. The peculiar conditions of the bet attracted a great deal of attention, especially among the old school of trotting horsemen in this part of the country, and on the day of the race there was a great gathering of them at the west side track. In her first attempt to beat 2:30 Fulton Maid was not successful, and so a second heat was trotted. In her first mile the mare had worn toe-weights, but before the next heat these were discarded, and in order that the mile might be rated properly, Budd Doble, who had Monroe Chief at the track, was induced to bring the stallion out and make the pace for Fulton Maid. He did this in a masterly manner and rated the old mare along so nicely that she went the mile a trifle better than 2:29 and won the bet for her owner. That fall Nutwood was in this part of the country being exhibited at the state fair, and Fulton Maid was bred to him the following spring, the resultant foal being the stallion colt that is now known as Sulfonal. Fulton Maid was by Clay Pilot, a horse that passed his life in Wisconsin and that was a greatly neglected sire. In these days when the Clay blood is so much in demand Clay Pilot mares are being picked up in Wisconsin and bred to some of the best horses in the country."

There might have been an added interest to the article if it had been stated that Fulton Maid was taken right from grass when she made that wonderful performance. At any rate Sulfonal shows for himself, but the story of his breeding adds interest especially here where he is owned.

By the way, D. McWilliams, who has of late years become conspicuous among local horsemen, has a filly that is the subject of much admiration from capable judges. The colt is from his handsome and stylish black mare, Ida Goldst, an in-bred Morgan, who is a combined saddle and harness mare. Her colt was sired by Mr. Sharpless' Sulfonal, and though only three weeks old the filly is already pronounced to be perfection. One old and capable horseman, after examining the youngster, said "If there was ever a perfect colt, McWilliams, you have it." That is the general verdict of all who have seen the fine young animal. It is but natural that the owner should be proud of so well bred, handsome and promising colt. She will be heard from.

LITERALLY ROASTED

The Accident That Befel Charley Watters, at the Steam Shovel Works.

The particulars in the fearful accident that befel Charley Watters, at the Steam Shovel Works Monday afternoon, are found to be more severe than the first hurried inquiries revealed. The circumstances are most shocking in their nature.

The young man was engaged in painting the engine boiler with asphaltum, a varnish used for that purpose, and a torch lamp was required to furnish light. This lamp was knocked over and ignited the varnish and the flames enveloped Watters, the whole enclosure being ablaze. The unfortunate young man was unable to extricate himself from his position, being confined in a veritable prison of fire. Workmen who were near heard his cries and hastened to him, pulling him out in the open air. His clothing was burned off almost entirely and dropped in crisp shreds to the ground, and the flesh was in many places literally roasted.

Drs. Hamilton and Sweney were called to the injured man, and found his condition almost hopelessly severe. The back, neck, chest, hands and arms were burned until the flesh hung loose; the face was also attacked by the relentless flames, and the lips were parched with the heat. It was also found that the man had inhaled the fire, inflicting internal injuries, from which the gravest danger was feared. Watters was taken to the home of Fred Bean, on west South street, and the physicians began their strenuous efforts to save his life. It was at first thought by them that he could not live, but there were still hopes this morning that he might pull through with his life. He passed a comparatively good night and today his chances for recovery were better, but there are still danger points to pass.

The accident was a most unusual one, no danger from the source ever being apprehended. Watters' parents have arrived from St. Marys, O., and he is receiving all the care possible to bestow.

Heavy Hailstorm in Texas.

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 19.—Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of crops were annihilated by a heavy hailstorm last night, which fell from a depth of from six to eighteen inches in a narrow belt of territory, crossing the entire state. In the vicinity of Gainesville, where wheat averaging thirty bushels per acre was ready for the reaper, not a head was left standing. The damage in the vicinity of Gainesville is at least $100,000, while several other sections report damage nearly as great.

The Monkey and the Rounder.

A man walks round a pole, on the top of which is a monkey. As the man moves the monkey turns round on the top of the pole so as still to keep face to face with the man. When the man has gone round the pole, has he, or has he not, gone round the monkey?

As either answer to this question may be upheld with strong and logical arguments, the reader is left to decide the question for himself.—New York Tribune.

Will Be Here Next Week.
The undersigned is engaged in the reputable and perfectly straight and legitimate business of introducing the Three W. Remedies and placing it on the retail drug trade. The plan of introduction is street lectures followed by sales. I made application for permit or license to pursue my business in this city, but have been absolutely refused, on the ground of blockading the streets, while at the same time the Salvationists and "dot little German Band" go about with their noise unmolested. Understand, your mayor did not endeavor to freeze me out with a high price but absolutely refuses a license. My business is legitimate. I spend money freely in necessary expenses to introduce the Three W. Remedies, and I will be here next week to contest the right of any authority to refuse me a license to appear on your streets. Look out for lecture next Monday night. G. W. WHITE, Proprietor Three W. Remedies.

The Ladies Delighted.
The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, Syrup of Figs, under all conditions make it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels.

Settled the Frost.
Last Saturday night's frost blasted the high hopes of the local fruit growers, and their losses amount to thousands of dollars. The raspberries were badly hurt, the grapes ruined and the strawberries that promised so well will hardly afford one good picking. Mr. Blake's loss is especially heavy. We have heard it estimated at $2,000. Jacob Smith is also a heavy loser, and J. B. Virden places his loss at $500 to $800. The gardeners all feel their losses keenly.

The Ladies of the M. E. church will give an old fashioned social and supper in the basement of the new church on next Wednesday evening, beginning at 5 o'clock. Supper 25 cents. All are cordially invited. COMMITTEE.

A pamphlet is being sent out by the state board of health to mayors and health officers on the "Hog Pen Nuisance." The paper was suggested by a bitter legal fight, in which the health authorities of Warren engaged to break up the practice of keeping hogs within the corporation. The local board attempted to abate the hog pens as nuisances, and secured the indictment of one of the offending parties, who escaped on a technicality. The indictment tending to state that he kept a "live hog in the pen." On a second trial an effort to punish the hogs was successful, and now it is unlawful to keep a hog in the limits of Warren for more than forty-eight hours.

NO CEMENTS RETURNED.
The Grand Jury heard six cases and ignored four.
The grand jury completed its work Monday and returned two indictments for burglary, against William Williams and Frank Welsh. Williams, it will be remembered, is the man caught in Pitman & Irwin's store at Caledonia. Welsh was implicated in breaking open a C. H. V. and T. box-car here and stealing a number of shirts, to which he plead guilty at the preliminary hearing before Mayor Dudley.
The jury had six cases for hearing, the following of which were ignored: H. L. Bonner, jumping board bill; Wilson and Della Severn and Caleb H. Davis, harboring dogs.

Pointers for the C. and E.
[Lima Republican.]
The C. and E. railroad officials are being besieged with letters of request from all the towns along their line between Huntington and Marion, asking that the morning and evening local, that was taken off some six months since, be replaced. As the passenger trains now run it is almost an impossibility to go to any point on the line and return the same day. The service is wretched, as far as local points are concerned. It looks very much as if the Erie company is catering to the through passenger traffic from Chicago to New York and letting their local business suffer in consequence. There is no question of the necessity of a morning and evening train each way, and the urgent demands of the people living along the line, who aided by liberal subscriptions the putting through of the road, should at least be shown a small degree of consideration.

Well Pleased.
Was the universal expression of every one who attended the Kellogg beautiful entertainments at Music Hall last evening. The program consisted of a journey through London and the British museum, after which came a series of fine transformation scenes. Miss Jennie McKell recited the "Charge of the Black Regiment," and the "Green Mountain Justice." Being called before the curtain she gave the "Death of Little Joe" in a very touching manner. Tonight's program will be Paris, the gay metropolis, with its miles of gilded salons and the Louvre museum. Miss McKell will recite "The Wreck of the Hesperus," "Polish Boy" and the "King's Cure." Admission 25c, children only 10c. Seats may be reserved without cost at Tristram & Young's.
